

SHARE YOUR PERSPECTIVE ON ACADEMIC PUBLIC HEALTH

Submission Guidelines

A space for timely ideas, analysis, and insights from across the public health community.

Academic Public Health Perspectives features commentary and informed perspectives at the intersection of academic public health, policy, practice, and education. We welcome submissions from ASPPH members and the broader public health community.

What We're Looking For

We're interested in original perspectives that offer insight and context into the issues shaping academic public health. You might write about:

- Current or emerging public health issues
- Research, education, practice, policy, or leadership
- Innovation, equity, and workforce development
- Commentary or reflections on policy and practice
- Case studies and lessons learned
- New ideas or perspectives relevant to academic public health

The strongest submissions offer a clear point of view, useful insight, and information that can help readers understand an issue or consider a new perspective.

What Makes a Strong Submission?

Timely	Insightful	Accessible	Evidence-informed	Original
Connected to current or emerging issues in public health.	Offers analysis, reflection, or a perspective that adds value to the conversation.	Written clearly for a broad public health audience, with minimal jargon.	Grounded in evidence, with sources linked when appropriate.	Not previously published or under consideration elsewhere.

The typical length is 800–1,500 words.

What We Don't Publish

Academic Public Health Perspectives is not intended for:

- Promotional or marketing content
- Press releases
- Academic manuscripts or highly technical research articles
- Partisan, inflammatory, or non-evidence-informed content
- Previously published pieces

Original perspectives may draw on previously published work when the original source is appropriately linked.

Ready to Share Your Perspective?

Please submit your article to externalrelations@aspvh.org

- 1. Your article
Word document or Google Doc link preferred.
- 2. Article image
1600 × 900 px, landscape, high-resolution JPG or PNG.
- 3. Author information
Full name, title, institutional affiliation, and a 75–115-word bio.
- 4. Author headshot
450 × 450 px, square, high-resolution.

Authors must have permission to use submitted images.

What Happens After You Submit?

ASPPH reviews submissions for: Relevance • Timeliness • Originality • Clarity • Accessibility

ASPPH may edit submissions for clarity, length, style, and grammar or request revisions.

Authors retain ownership of their work while granting ASPPH permission to publish and promote accepted content.

Have an Idea?

You don't need to be an ASPPH member to contribute. Submit your article today!

externalrelations@aspvh.org